Edge-of-your-seat military romantic suspense...

Ex-Navy pilot Will Fletcher has returned home to the fishing village of Looe, Cornwall, and bought a pub. As far as he's concerned, he's done with the military, with trouble, and with women. All he's interested in is living a quiet life in the country with his dogs and his boat.

Desperate to escape a traumatic past, local vet Jo Williams has fled her native New Zealand for Looe. She's finding her new home rather lonely, but a relationship is the last thing she wants. After all, her stalker ex-boyfriend Jack is the reason she ran in the first place.

Yet when Jo meets Will the chemistry between them is undeniable, and it is clear that fate has her own plans for them. Unfortunately, so does Jack—and his include murder.

Lots of suspense and fear throughout this book. Very emotional and dark at times. This book was well written with complex characters and page turning suspense. I enjoyed this book and if you like romantic suspense books with lots of drama, this books for you. I read an advance copy and voluntarily chose to review this book.

Voluntary review of an ARC. Truly one of the best books I've read in quite a long time. The characters were believable and engaging, the romance was first rate, the suspense kept me turning the pages quickly, and the story was very interesting. The magnetism between Jo and Will was apparent from the start, but past secrets provided much friction. Nice hea. I look forward to reading more by this author. Highly recommended.

OH MY GOD!!! I LOVED THIS BOOK!!! It was a fantastic story that gets you hooked from beginning to end. It has great characters, you have Jo, the beautiful veterinarian that used to be a happy-go-lucky and carefree person and now she's on the run from her ex and is filled with terror and anxiety a shell of her former self. You have Will, the new friend who's broody, handsome, brave and will stop at nothing to protect her, then you have Jack the bat sh!t crazy, seriously scary psycho ex boyfriend who will really creep you out and keep you on the edge of your sanity waiting and wondering when and if he will show up and what he'll do because he'll stop at nothing to find her. It's a great, fast paced, page turning, stay up all night (like me) kind of book. I highly recommend it, you will not be dissapointed. I voluntarily read for an honest review an Advanced Reader Copy of this book which I received for free but I would of happily paid for it!

Merry Jelks-Emmanuel says

Will and Jo are such strong dynamic characters. Jo moves across country from an abusive boyfriend and gets hit by a car the driver offers her assistance and help. Jo and Will connect immediately both knowing that there is something about the other that draws them closer together. Will notices a car out side of the pub and offers to protection for Jo. Both are harboring traumatic events from the past they find solace in each other. This is a story with suspense, intrigue and drama with every turn of the page.

Margaret Watkins says

Ebb Tide is a well written, highly suspenseful romance. From the opening chapter to the end, the reader is caught up in the current of fear experienced by Jo. I was also affected by Will's dark moods and sometimes surliness and felt worried that his bad temper would destroy what he had with Jo. Cornwall is known for petty crimes, not murder. The first murder in 49 years took place near the tiny village of Truro in 1998 and still has not been solved. So for the village of Looe to experience stalking, murder and general mayhem was way beyond anything within living memory. Fortunately Will is not without skills and despite his moodiness, he is nevertheless able to give Jo the protection she needs to keep safe. Apart from the suspenseful side of this book, both hero and heroine are suffering from the after effects of violence with flashbacks and guilt permeating their lives. While I couldn't personally relate to the traumas experienced by the main characters, I nevertheless found them believable and understood their reactions. They had so many difficulties to work through, but as always the key to dealing with pain and loss is communication. This book ended on a highly satisfactory note with justice having been served. I was also relieved that Jo and Will survived the ordeal and that their romance had a chance of becoming reality. The flow of language in this book was good, with my only complaint being that the story often switched between scenes without warning, and I had to read a sentence twice to figure out what had happened. I received this book for free from eBook Discovery. I voluntarily post this review. This is my honest review.

<<<<< Slightly Confusing Story >>>>>

Jo, I found to be slightly confusing. Her strength, determination and sarcastic banter is very admirable. Her battle with her demons, understandable. But that's where my understanding ends. She wants to take charge of her own situation but she seems to constantly fall apart. And her reactions and decisions are very dodgy. I found Will to be a strong character. He's very interesting and very likeable. He clearly had an attraction to Jo and eventually acted on. I got lost with him trying get a handle on his anger issues. It was a very well written story, but It didn't have as much heat and action as I thought it would've.

LuAnn Rodriquez says

EBB TIDE by Leah Murray is well written and left me on the edge of my mental reading seat more than once. Jo, the book's heroine, is from New Zealand but has recently moved to Cornwall, England to evade an abusive boyfriend. In the process of running from a criminal crony of said boyfriend who has also accosted her on the beach, Jo is hit by a car on the street and injures her shoulder. This accident happens close to a pub which is partially owned by the driver of the car, Will.

Will and Jo form an immediate attraction as he makes sure the injury to her shoulder is taken care of and they begin to spend time together. He notices a vehicle parked outside her rental house as he leaves the pub in the early morning hours and offers her the protection of staying at his house. Jo is slow to talk about the danger she faces from her previous boyfriend and Will has secrets of his own. They slowly trust and share with each other the traumas each has dealt with and Will's family and friends get to know and like Jo, with her having an overall positive effect on his life.

These are two interesting people who have led full lives of danger and sorrow that find comfort and joy in a relationship together. The suspense is well done and real. I highly recommend this book to all who enjoy this genre.

Carol says

This was my first book by this author and I was pleasantly surprised. It was well thought out and well written. It had romance, suspense and kept you turning pages to see what happened next. The story line was great and the characters came to life. I recommend this to all! I received it as an arc and voluntarily reviewed it.

Laurie Beemer says

I was hooked from the very first page. The way that Jo showed such strength and courage even after everything that she has been through was truly inspiring. She struggled through the past but she fought it, it did not define her it made her who she now is. When Jo and Will be they have a chemical attraction that is so obvious, but their past is still haunting them both. This book takes the reader on a journey through a very suspenseful path of hurt and destruction and at the end of the path will their be happiness or will the evil win out over good? Will and Jo must fight together to live, and to find each other. Thank you Reading Alley for allowing me to read this book and write a honest review.
