Sometimes humanity is a luxury.

Sometimes the truth should never be known.

Sometimes the only thing that you can do is run.

Misty is a girl that has known death her whole life, it has been the only constant in her world. In this darkened prison she serves her captives knowing the only hope of freedom resides in death. In a time of grief Misty learns the truth of the only home she has ever known. Horrified she knows that she must take what is left of her family and escape, even if it is to certain death at the world above. Danger stalks her at every turn she takes as she is betrayed by those she trusts. Fighting for survival she searches for a way to escape the truth of the Cavern of Death.

i read this because i read Angelica and i wasn't disappointed.

It is completely different but i loved it. Misty lost everything but still wouldn't give up. i cant wait to see where the next book takes her.
