DNF

I got about 28% through this one and just cant go any further than that. Not because it's a bad book but because it's too similar to Jillian Dodd's KC.

List of some of the Similarities:

Unusual name.

Famous Parents.

Main character has blonde hair and blue eyes.

Stalker/Killer after main character because of obsession with one of the parents.

Sent to boarding school to hide from stalker/killer

Name of that school is Eastbrooke

Has to change last name.

God of all hotties/King of hotties

Cowboy boots on the first day of school

The Cave/The Hollow

Roommate requests a room swap

This is the similarities that stood out the most for me by I am sure their are more (and remember I have only read 28% of this book)

I also don't see the need for her last name to have been changed when she can tell everyone at school exactly who she is and why she is in hiding.

Not sure if I will finish this one but if anyone can tell me whither or not it drifts away from KC and becomes its own story because if I wanted to read the KC again I would just re-read the original series. If someone says this gets better and more original I may give it another chance but until then not reading any more.

I loved this book!! The characters are amazing and I need more of Rhys ASAP. I will take more of Slade too.

I was in the mood for a high school novel and thought that this one sounded interesting as it also had the main character going into a sort of witness protection programme. Lovechild starts with Blakely Bennett discovering that she is in fact adopted and the child of celebrities Mason and Sophia. This has been a shock to Blakely as she never thought she would be adopted. To make matters worst though, Blakely is now the target of a stalker who wants Mason and will kill everyone who stands in their way which now includes Mason's newfound daughter. Blakely is put into a whirlwind and sent to Eastbrooke Academy where she is given a new surname and sent to a private school that is hidden away. Once Blakely arrives, she meets Slade who happens to be a hottie. However, Blakely is about to be at the end of the Ice Queen's wrath as Slade is her ex-boyfriend. I have to admit, I hated this part of the book, and I had been hoping to enjoy it, but it was like as soon as she arrived - she went immediately into this crazed love teen, and all the boys wanted her. I also hated the character of Rhys as the way he pursued Blakely and acted around her was total overkill and I found all the kids at this school to be too dramatic, and all they were interested in was hooking up with one another and partying and playing with each other's feelings. Then near the end, Blakely receives a note about the stalker and how he's harmed her Dad. This was a big moment, and I was like OMG, but it felt so minimal and played down in the book. It was almost like my high school life is more important than finding out my Dad has been killed by a stalker. I am now in two minds about reading Book #2 as I want to see how it finishes but also not sure if I can handle more of the petty drama and angst of the teens.

Was an interesting read, the author is still flushing out the characters and plot so it would be interesting to see how it goes....

Karen says

It was a nice book, but it wasn't original- it was almost the same plot as Jillian Dodd's boarding school series, and I felt like I was rereading one of the books in that series
