The Perfect Fit Jenna Sutton

Zeke May has spent the past two years recovering from an IED attack and trying to adjust to life as a civilian. The veteran hiring program at denim empire Riley O'Brien & Co. offers a new beginning. The only problem is the high cost of housing in San Francisco, and Margo Lange could be the perfect solution.

Now that Margo has completed veterinary school, she's ready to fulfill her dream of living in the Bay Area. Unfortunately, she's drowning in student loan debt and the only places she can afford are dumps. Luckily, one of her uncle's Army buddies needs a roommate.

Although Zeke's place is a perfect fit for Margo's budget, he is not what she expects. He's much younger than her uncle, and he's melt-your-panties hot. She doesn't want to fall for him, but it doesn't take her long to realize that Zeke is the perfect fit for her, regardless of their age gap. Too bad he's so obviously still in love with his ex-wife...

This was a cute short novella. Loved Zeke from the beginning, not only is he this big hulking military hottie but his protectiveness of Margo was freakin adorable and he had a sense of humor.

Zeke and Margo are as different as night and day but that's what makes it all so fun. This was a pretty drama free read. There is some angst, our H suffers with PTSD and deals with some insecurities and doubts about starting a relationship since an IED took his leg. Margo was Zeke's wake up call and I loved their story. Zeke really was an awesome H, he was sexy, funny, sweet and all around nice guy. Margo, our heroine was a happy go lucky girl. There was instant attraction for her but they start as friends and it gradually builds up. This was a friends turned lovers romance. Definitely a feel good summer read. I loved the characters, the writing style and the perfect amount of heat. I really liked this one, it was an easy and fun read.

Zeke & Margo really are a perfect fit!

There are some stories that just make you happy when you read them. The Perfect Fit is exactly that kind of tale. Jenna Sutton has delivered a story that's so bright, charming, and heartwarming that I couldn't put it down.

Margo is a ray of sunshine. Her energy and optimism jump off the page and she simply dazzles everyone, Zeke included. Margo is a veterinarian who has always wanted to move to San Francisco, but the cost of living when combined with her student loan debt, is staggering. She needs a roommate, and luckily for her, her uncle's old Army buddy has an apartment and could use a roommate as well. Zeke is eleven years older than Margo, but it's the physical and emotional toll war has taken on him that makes him feel like he's decades older. Zeke is strong, steady, and self-aware. Until he was injured he had no plans of leaving the Army. Now he's adapting to a new life across the country that's completely different than what he was used to. What Zeke needs is laughter and love in his life, and Margo brings that to him. Zeke puts up a few barriers trying to do what he thinks is right for himself and Margo, but I was rooting for he and Margo to knock down each obstacle. Both of them are likeable, hardworking people with big hearts. They're not without flaws and vulnerabilities, which makes them relatable, and I honestly wish they were real just so I could be friends with them.

From the start, Zeke and Margo click as roommates, but the longer they live together, the closer they become. Add in their mutual attraction, and it's clear that they won't be able to resist one another for long. The sexual tension between them sizzles, and Ms. Sutton knows how to crank up the heat. But what really grabbed me was the honest emotional connection between Margo and Zeke. The two of them are truly a perfect fit; they're good for each other and they make a fantastic, compelling couple.

The Perfect Fit is set in the world of Ms. Sutton's Riley O'Brien & Co. series, but it can easily be read as a standalone. That being said, it was fun seeing more of the company and Cal O'Brien's small supporting role had me eager to read his book. All in all, this is a fabulous novella that should charm any contemporary romance fan. Zeke and Margo are so appealing that the moment I finished their story I wanted to read it all over again. I loved The Perfect Fit and I can't wait to read more Riley O'Brien & Co. stories!

This book is just a novella in this series and follows Zeke and Margo as roommates. This book is just sooo cute.

Margo aka Go-go as Zeke calls her falls in love with him in a heart-bit. She is a vet in a new series and needs a low rent. They spend a lot time together and she already sees a future with him but.....

Zeke as in a other hand is an ex-militar and he does sees himself marry again or falling in love with a much younger(just 11 years) woman who makes him hot and thinking naughty thoughts about her.

The plot is simple but they build their relationship to actually been involved more.

I just love when you find an author that you know, you just KNOW, that when you pick up a book from them you are in for a great story. A story that will help me escape for a bit, let me live vicariously through the characters, and give me the happily ever after that I LOVE! For me Jenna Sutton is that kind of author!

The Perfect Fit is a quick story that I read in one afternoon. I felt that the handling of the aftereffects of a soldier returning from active service were handled realistically. I was drawn in by Margo's love for veterinary medicine and for quirky animals facts. And, oh man, the chemistry between Margo and Zeke was smoking off of my kindle!

This story is listed as a novella off of Jenna's Riley O'Brien & Co. series but in my opinion this can definitely be read as a standalone. But be ready to buy the other 2 books that Jenna has out because her writing style is so spot on you will not be able to resist! Here is an example:

“At this point, he had only a few life goals. He wanted to sleep through the night without any nightmares. He wanted to run in marathons again. He wanted to end his three-year dry spell and f*ck a soft, sexy woman until he came so hard he passed out. But all of those things required him to do one thing: deal with the toxic emotions he had...”

I give The Perfect Fit – 5 “Life is short. Let’s eat dessert first.” STARS!!

I wasn't expecting to love this book, but I totally did. I love roommate romances, and this one really fit the bill. Yes, it's a novella, so it's on the short side...and yes, I do wish it had been a little longer....but I still loved the friendship that developed between Zeke and Margo. I loved his little nickname for her (go-go) but I kind of wish I'd seen how she ended up with that nickname.

I loved seeing them fall for each other, even if I wished I'd been able to see more.

I definitely can't wait to check out the other books in this series!

Zeke is an odd one, he tries to do the right thing, or what he thinks is right and it ends up being wrong. I liked the relationship between Margo and Zeke, the girl knows how to voice her opinions: She huffed in obvious frustration. “Because I’m in your bed, Zeke, and you haven’t even noticed that I’m almost naked.” Glancing down, he eyed her breasts. Her tight black camisole barely contained the plump mounds.

“I noticed,” he assured her.

At times Zeke would rather show Margo his answers to questions then speak, “that’s a good question.” He took her hand and pressed it against his zipper. “Here’s your answer.” I liked this book I loved Zeke.

What a cute, make-you-feel-good read! I loved every second of The Perfect Fit. The only downfall of this one? That it had to end. I had such a good time with these two as desperation brought them together as roommates and they went from strangers to best friends to something even more. sigh I loved them.

Zeke is one sexy beast of a man. He's a little older at 36--she's 25--and maybe a spot world weary after coming home from war. And Margo. She's his opposite. She's young and cheerful and shiny compared to his regimented and more serious self.

I just loved them together. They really were the perfect fit and so cute as they took up together and both settled into life in the area--new jobs, joining the softball league at work, making friends. It was just lovely and sweet and sexy too. Their chemistry was fabulous. It did take them a little while to move into the more than friends category because of a little hang up of Zeke's that kinda pulled at the heart but made him even more interesting. One of my favorite things? That Zeke wasn't a manwhore! He'd only been with one woman before the heroine and even his experience with her was somewhat limited. I just loved that. It was really refreshing in a genre full of I've-slept-with-everything-that-moves heroes.

All in all, The Perfect Fit was the perfect read for an afternoon escape. Sexy and sweet it'll pull at your heart strings and have you laughing out loud as two very special people find just a little magical when they least expect it.

I loved the little detour that The Perfect Fit provided by exploring the life, one of the O'Brien's employees, a broken ex army man and young broke veterinarian who happen to end up living together and finding that they are the perfect fit.

Zeke Mays was the perfect distraction whilst waiting for the third book and whilst we did get glimpse of Cal O'Brian, the last of the O'Briens. Readers will be busy enamoured like me with this hunky male who gets life turns up side down by his new gorgeous younger roommate Margo.

Margo is a new qualified veterinarian who has moved to the dream place she has always want to live , San Francisco however the rent isn't cheap. So when she get an lead to find a place to rent in a safe area and meets Zeke. She surprised as he is the last person she expecting considering that he is a friend of her uncles.

Zeke isn't decades older though he feels like it. He merely elevens years old and is very agreeable and easy to get along with. However emotionally and physically tells a different story, Zeke is struggling with the accident that lead him to this place. Moving across country and dealing with the changes that civilian life brings.

He needs someone and sunny , happy Margo is exactly the sort of woman who can deliver that and more. However Is Zeke ready to accept His Perfect Fit?

For a pretty straight forward novella, Sutton delivered another standout story for this series. Both likeable characters with big hearts trying to deal with their vulnerabilities and flaws that stop them from taking that step we desperate want asap. As all the signs were there, they clicked instantly and soon was sizzle tension as Sutton made them work for it.

Showing they were the Perfect in all sense of the world. I loved this detour as we got to see more of the company and charm us in to loving the world that Sutton has created by giving us that novella.

. I love novellas when they give us a story that is complete and with out lose ends. The Perfect Fit was that and more. Giving us a story in a familiar world and expanding it with giving a us a beautiful romance about finding the perfect fit. It paced perfectly to fit that image, slowly building and slow burning as Margo and Zeke move from perfect strangers to friends and finally to lovers and in love.

It's perfect standalone is the bonus with this book so if you want to dip your toes or have another experience with your favourite demin compmany. This book is a must read.

This is a quick little novella that adds to the O'Brien series. While we see some characters from the previous books we also meet two new characters.

Zeke and Margo are different as night and day but with them being roommates that doesn't matter much. These two have an attraction towards one another but Zeke is quick not to let anything happen between them. One they are roommates and that could be awkward and two he is 11 years older then her, but the more time they spend together doing just roommate stuff the more their feelings begin to grow.

From the beginning I was drawn to Margo's sunny personality and Zeke's gruffness. As the story and characters grow I really enjoyed the little changes in Zeke's personality and the positive effect Margo was having on him.

During the story we find out Zeke was married and has only been with one woman. His ex didn't believe in oral for either one of them so it came as a shock that this man hasn't ever done anything but missionary. I thought Sutton did an excellent job at writing Zeke experiencing new things and loving it. For this novella it had the right amount of sexy scenes that worked for this story.

If you love the O'Brien series as much as I do you definitely don't want to miss out on this treat!

Oh, wow. ZEKE! I can't tell you how much I loved this sexy novella—although I'm certainly going to try...

I've have the good fortune to review two other books in this series—Coming Apart at the Seams, and the upcoming Hanging By a Thread. I enjoyed them both, HBaT immensely. I thought nothing would top my love for Cal O'Brien, but Zeke May definitely gives him a run for his money. (Although, the little moments with Cal in The Perfect Fit just reinforced my adoration of the O'Brien heir.)

This novella is wonderful; not too long or short, paced like a dream—this amazing slow build and burn of two people coming together, first in friendship and then, ultimately, in love. They're so right together. The Perfect Fit is the perfect title for the love story of Margo and Zeke.

I adored BOTH of these characters. Solemn Zeke, who didn't feel worthy, and sunny Margo, who was just so loving. I ached for these people—when Margo was distraught, so was I. When Zeke was worried, so was I. And when they were turned on and burning up the pages of my Kindle, I was...whew, looking for a cold shower or SOMETHING. fans self

I can't recommend this novella highly enough. If you're new to the series, rest assured, it's a total standalone—although I definitely recommend picking up the earlier books, just because they're fun. I, myself, will be grabbing book one as soon as I hit submit on this review.

And if you HAVE been lucky enough to meet the Riley O'Brien & Co. crew, then settle in with Zeke and Margo, and know you're in for a hell of a good read. ~ Beth, 5 Go-go stars

My Review:

First things first...this is a novella within a series, but you absolutely do NOT have to read the series to be able to enjoy this novella. While it falls within the world, the stories really have no bearing on one another at all. Pick this one up to check out this author's writing. I think you will enjoy it and then you can check out the rest of the series.

This book is about Margo and Zeke. Margo is a new veterinarian starting her first job in the city she's always wanted to live in...San Francisco. But as a new college graduate, money is super tight and SF is not a cheap place to live. Through her godfather, Margo finds Zeke...a man 11 years her senior who worked with her godfather in the military but now handles the logistics for Riley's jean company.

Zeke lost the lower half of his leg on his last deployment in the military. At that point in time, his marriage was already over, but his ex-wife still was instrumental in helping his recovery. Zeke is a loner, but he finds himself quickly charmed by his new roommate.

This is a novella, so it's a quick read, but I didn't feel like it lacked depth in the story at all. Just the opposite...I fell in love with the two characters and was thoroughly entranced by their romance. They begin as friends and I do love a friends to lovers story.

Margo is a veterinarian so there are some great scenes with her job. By nature, she's a compassionate understanding person. She's the perfect fit for Zeke. He's spent most his life in the military. He's a very stoic, regimented guy. Margo eases his personality. He's more relaxed and definitely happier around him.

I thoroughly enjoyed this story and HIGHLY recommend it. It's just a really, really good one.

I received a complimentary copy of this book in return for an honest review.

namericanwordcat says

The romance was just the right blend of funny, tender, sexy and real. I love low angst romance which is all about the couple.

Watching Zeke and Margo fall in love is a pure joy. I adore the Zeke is not a man whore. His not a man whorenness is beyond hot. They become great friends. There are things each needs to work through but in the end they are meant to be.

Love all the tropes are done so well but the writing is so crisp and the dialogue is lovely with all these little gems studded through the character development like the heroine's thrift shopping.

The only thing that kept it from being a five star for me was that I wanted more of an epilogue though what I got was good, I just want more lushness in a final chapter or more epilogue.

I highly recommend. And it was free on Amazon as a gateway drug to this author. So, go get hooked!

I so enjoyed THE PERFECT FIT! Light-hearted, fun, sexy and sweet, it was just the right combination to keep me turning pages, and wishing for more of Zeke and Margo!

For the length of a novella, Sutton packs a punch with emotion and heart, and a side of spice that has the heart pumping! If you are looking for a great introduction to Sutton's writing, check out THE PERFECT FIT, you will find it to be a delectable treat!
