Angel with a Bullet M.C. Grant

A dab of romance and a truckload of trouble

As a wise-cracking reporter for San Francisco's top alternative weekly, Dixie Flynn knows how to draw out a story. And she knows there is more behind the apparent suicide of her former lover, artist Diego Chino, than the police are letting on.

Brushing up on the Bay Area art scene, a picture emerges that implicates a reclusive patron. After being run down by a car in a Chinatown alley, Dixie is more determined than ever to dodge her editor and the SFPD long enough to piece together the truth behind his counterfeit art operation. But when a knife finds its way through her typing hand and she's nearly cooked alive in a warehouse fire, it seems doubtful Dixie will live long enough to write the story.

Gwen Samson says

Brilliant book

A really good author who made this book funny but with dark incidents happening throughout the book. Cleverly written with a strong story line.

Louise Pass says

Strange doings in the art world

Unconventional journalist/detective Dixie Flynn dodges buckshot and bullets to solve an art related crime in beautiful San Francisco, with the help of her friends and some interesting acquaintances.

Robert C. smith says

A Fun, Fast-Paced Mystery

With one of the best and most creative word smithing creations, Grant keeps the reader guessing while providing delightful humor.

Deann Dyke says

I loved this book. I am not sure how many books are in this series but I hope there are many! Dixie Flynn is my new favorite series :-)

Dan Barbier says

What an enjoyable read. Dixie Flynn is an entertaining heroine in a funny mystery with a dash of sex. This is a series that will be a lot of fun to follow.

Sara Stevens-stehl says

I loved this story. It isn't always completely believable, but Dixie Flynn is a relatable, lovable heroine who doesn't realize she is in over her head until it's almost too late, a formula that always grabs my interest.

Giovanni Gelati says

A great mix of humor, mystery, action, and suspense. A juggling act that was carried off with ease and panache(did I spell that right?, who knows).Anyway, my ereader was clicking away as this moves fast, furious and with a huge element of fun. I really enjoyed the characters and hope that is a continuing series.

Angel With A Bullet

I couldn't help it but love Dixie! A gutsy kickass reporter with a heart of gold and a great kick ass wit.

Lori says

The Northern CA Digital Library has a bunch of mysteries set in San Francisco, and I've been reading a lot of them. This one is a fun read. The author gets SF correctly, which I am a stickler about (see my review of The Alchemist). The story is witty and moves along quickly. I like the characters and the plot was ok.

There are two issues I have. 1) The heterosexual female narrator's description of the sexy woman next door reads like a male heterosexual. The author is a male (presumably heterosexual) (M.C. Grant is an alternate name for Grant McKenzie). He needs to talk to some women about how they interact. 2) The plot barely held together for the first reading, and I'm pretty sure that the 'but wait' thoughts I have on reflection are not covered. (view spoiler)(very short spoiler)

Despite these issues I look forward to more stories. I'll even look for the other versions of this author.

Brynjar says

Exactly what I expected. Fast paced, light humour, decent plot and likable characters.

Lavender says

A fun mystery/thriller. Dixie gets in boat loads of trouble, but with a bit of digging, a little luck and some good friends, manages to get more of a story than she bargained for. I will definitely read more.

Marvin says

I gave the book 3*s for the tale. But I give 5*s to Dixie. The story reminded me of Saturday mornings at the theater for cartoons and Flash Gordon, Rocket Man, et. al., cliff hanger serials. The notable difference being that Flash always escaped unscathed unlike poor Dixie who really takes a beating but keeps coming back ticking.

Maureen Hetzel says

Delightful new detective is on the scene in the guise of an investigative reporter. And what a debut she makes. My kind of read...fast, plot twist after plot twist and a climatic ending. I look forward to the next adventure.

Amanda Przynski says

Does it ruin the review if I use the word plucky? I finally get more than I paid for with all the free books I've been reviewing. Truly determined (read: plucky) reporter Dixie investigates the apparent suicide of renowned local artist Diego Chino. She won't stop not matter how many times, and how many different ways her life is threatened. Foreshadowing was gentle so as to not ruin the plot for all except the most detailed reader. Even when you figure it out, you're not too upset to finish the book. Character development is well rounded, even some of the minor characters are fleshed out in little ways to make you appreciate their charms. Might even have to pay for additional books in the series! Definitely worth the time.

Patty says

Started slow, but in the end I couldn't put it down and was looking for the next one. I love Dixie, a strong women with humor.
