Little Red's Riding 'Hood Peter Stein , Chris Gall (Illustrations)

When Little Red's Granny Putt Putt gets sick, the tiny moped scooter races over the river and through the dark woods to bring her a basket of get-well goodies.

But when Little Red crosses paths with Tank, the biggest, loudest, meanest machine around, that no-good monster truck has plans of his own.

Why, Granny, what big wheels you have!

Why, Granny, what big headlights you have!

Why, Granny, what a big hood you have!

From the sparkplug, creative minds of Peter Stein and Chris Gall comes a full-throttle version of the classic LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD tale that will have everyone revving for more.

This was a good book and I especially like the twist with the character being 'Trucks, Cars and Scooter'. The story had the same story line of 'Little Red Riding Hood' but the twist was The scooter was 'Little Red', the truck was 'The Bad Wolf' and the car was 'Grandma' and Little Red took grandma some oil and wiper fluid as treats. When I read the original book in my classroom the boys wouldn't sit still compared to the girls. But, when I read the book 'Little Red's Riding Hood' the boys were very attentive and I believe it was because of the twist. I recommend that all Teachers read this book in their classroom, they will have plenty of observation.

In this fractured fairy tale, the characters are portrayed as Little Red the scooter, Granny Putt Putt the golf cart, and Tank the monster truck. After Little Red reaches Granny's house and discovers that Tank has devoured Granny Putt Putt, he leads him on a rollicking chase that ends as Truck crashes and becomes a traffic cop.

There is plenty of action in this amusing take-off of a classic fairy tale that is sure to entertain young and old. Look out for the tongue in cheek humor and bright colorful graphics in this hilarious book. This would be a perfect addition to the elementary library. Recommended for grades pre-school through grade 2.

I won this book in a Goodreads giveaway and am very happy to receive it.

This book made me smile and I would love to read it over and over, especially with the kids at the track. It is perfect for both boys and girls from a very young age through elementary school.

Yes, the idea is based on the tale Little Red riding Hood, with a modern Cars feeling adaptation.

The illustrations are five star all the way - magnificent.

Overall construction and size of the book are excellent quality, easy for both young and old hands to hold. A wonderful chase scene and the violence level is quite acceptable.

Little Red is a scooter. He is trying to do a good thing for Big Blue Mama and check on Granny Putt Putt. He has never been all the way to her house alone. He doesn't think twice when big old Tank, the monster truck, asks him where he is going. Tank is a good ol' boy from the 'hood. Tank tells Red to stop at the auto parts store, to buy Tank time to get to Granny's house first.

A wonderful adventure where good does triumph over mischief.

This book is a revamp on Little Red Riding Hood. This is the book for someone that is getting tired of princesses and little boys especially will love this book. The illustrations are amazing and the story was pretty good as well. My daughter enjoyed this book a lot. Would recommend.

Little Red Riding Hood is retold here with an automotive theme. Little Red is a wide-eyed red scooter, the wolf is a monster truck named Tank, and Granny is a bright pink golf cart. The story premise is the same: Little Red must take some auto supplies to Granny, who is “exhausted”; he encounters Tank along the way, who diverts Little Red to the auto supply store, and, well, you know the rest... The ensuing chase between Little Red and Tank sends Tank hurtling over a guardrail, expelling Granny from his hood and landing in the junkyard. Little Red and Granny live happily ever after and Tank spends the rest of his days as a traffic bot. There are loads of automotive jokes, puns and wordplay. The text features lots of bolded, oversized words and numerous examples of onomatopoeia, for encouraging enthusiastic read-alouds. But the vivid illustrations are the real stars of this production. Little Red’s hometown, Vroomville, is filled with businesses serving the needs of cars and trucks: “Basket of Gaskets” and “Pistons ‘n’ Things” to name a few. Little Red is disarmingly cute and Tank is scary enough, but not too scary for the intended audience. Familiarity with the original is not a requisite for enjoying this version, but it would make for some interesting comparisons between the two tales. Boys especially would enjoy this version. It’s a nice addition to the fairy tale or picture book collections in the library.

This would be a fun book to add to a fractured fairy tale unit. In this zany telling, Little Red is a zippy little boy scooter and his granny, a pink golf cart, lives in the woods. Little Red is on his way to bring his basket of goodies when he encounters Tank, a monster truck. While relatively faithful, the car jokes abound, a couple fall flat, a few are good-natured groan-inducing and the rest are clever and fun. The illustrations are peppy and include lots of visual jokes, such as "Skid's Brake Repair" and "The Lug Nut Lounge."

Obviously another take on Little Red Riding Hood with a few minor changes - Red is a boy and a scooter, the big bad wolf is a tank, and granny is a golf cart. It's a fun little twist and a cute story.

Wonderful for fans of Cars and Airplanes (the movies and the items)! Loved the similarities to the original and the illustrations! Would be great for a fairy tale unit.

AMY says

Boys will love this new version of Red Riding Hood with cards and vehicles. A big monster tank was playing the wolf part as Little Red scooter makes his way to Granny Putt Putt's garage. There are lots of funny parts and the plot moves quickly. Highly recommended for Grades 2-3.

"Little Red loved riding around his 'hood."

When Granny Putt Putt is feeling under the weather, his mother asks Little Red to take her a basket of goodies. And then he encounters Tank, King of the Road, a monster truck at the top of Too Tall Hill. Tank sends Little Red to Zip's Auto Bonanza for better goodies and then heads to Granny Putt Putt's house himself. "What big wheels you have.", "What big headlights you have," etc. When Tank comes after Little Red, it's his knowledge of his 'hood that saves him.

Clever idea. The illustrations are vibrant and eye-catching. This should be popular with little car enthusiasts.

Chandler Jordahl says

This picture book is the story of Little Red Riding Hood, automobile style! Little Red, the scooter, is nervous about driving to Granny's alone for the first time. The Big Bad Monster Truck does not help his fears! A cute version of a classic fairy tale that is sure to appeal to some young boys (or girls) out there who are stuck in the truck stage of their life!

Lynn Kidd says

I was privileged enough to receive this book through a Goodreads giveaway. This book is such a joy to read to my son. I love the twist that Peter Stein, the author, put on the story little red riding hood. My son truly enjoys reading this book about the little scooter. We both enjoy the illustrations as they make the so animated as it goes along with the story. My son is just a toddler now but loves trucks and everything that goes along with them. This book is now his favorite book on the shelf, I believe he even has it memorized by now.

This book is child friendly and gives a modern day twist on an old story. Kids of all ages will appreciate the telling of Little Red and meanest monster truck Tank.

Ali (Ali's Bookshelf) says

Little Red's Riding' Hood is one of the cutest re-tellings of Little Red Riding Hood that I have ever seen. It's also one of the best I've seen geared toward little boys. Usually all I see if the story being told and geared toward little girls. I'm loving all the re-tellings that I've been saying lately and it's always great to get another take on a story we've all heard a thousand times.
