The Most Precious Memory by Beth Revis

4 stars

What would you do if you get rid of memories? Would you keep them or would you let them go? But getting rid of memories comes with a promise. Most people become addicted to tasting their own memories and 'Devon' is left an empty memory-less shell. He meets a man named Thomas who is looking to give away the most precious memory. I was truly astounded by this story. It was very well done. It's brief, but beautiful. Revis brings forth an interesting that could have made an excellent book, but stands well on its on as a short story. If you would like to read this story here.

That was so incredibly sad. This short story by Beth Revis was incredible. It's almost like, the less information about the world, the better it is. Having a world where you can consume your own memories, and get high off of them is incredible. It would be awesome if Beth Revis could expand on this, and create another trilogy.

Taryn says

This is such an interesting concept. It some-what reminded me of a sci-fi version of Harry Chapin's "Cats In The Cradle."

Marco says

Interesting concept. I missed reading something from Beth Revis.

Philip says

Short.

Tina says

I did not expect that such a short, small little story would make me misty-eyed, but it did. This was beautifully written and so heartbreaking at the end.

Denisse says

It was only those who still had their own memories that cared about names.

Hey woow! Beth has the entire head full of great ideas.

Adoro la forma tan inteligente que tiene Beth Revis de escribir. Es perfecta. Y adoro como con tan pocas palabras nos puede dar una historia tan buena.

Esta historia nos da muy poca información, y aun así sabes, que la idea podría fácilmente volverse grande. Ojala Beth sacara un libro al menos que definiera mas el mundo de esta historia corta.

Para los que como yo, no sabían de la existencia de esta historia, bueno Beth la escribió creo que como regalo para una pagina, o algo así, el punto es que esta para leer gratis desde esa pagina. Se las dejo abajo, esta en ingles obvio, pero es muy corta, deberían leerla;)

Short & very interesting!! :D A guy named Devon has eaten up all of his memories of his life & one night, a man named Thomas sells him the 'most precious memory' & Devon can hardly wait to eat it - he starts to eat it only to find that Thomas is his brother & he was once called James & that he'd had a girlfriend with fiery red hair & had broken up with & left for college - & after Thomas tracked him down & that night, Devon/James realizes who he is & instead of eating the memory, he tries to hold on to it & then when it's over, Thomas wakes up, not knowing who he is & how he got to the extraction hall & James knows everything that's happened - and there was just a sense of deja vu - and that's it !!
