Crimson Hero takes volleyball and bents it like Beckham in a story that pits traditional values against the love of the game. Contains Spoilers This was my favourite volume so far! I ABSOLUTELY loved the tension and the game that the mangaka showed to the reader between the two teams. First official match of Benihiro's team in the regional tournament with the best team which got low ranking due to a scandal. Wow, intense right from the beginning!

Nobara realises her feelings for Yuushin but she cant do anything because she knows he has a girlfriend he cares about.

Yushin brings his girlfriend which distracts Nobara from the first set in which she does nothing. Everyone in the team is nervous and can't perform well knowing that the other team's best members are benched because they dont even consider them worth playing with. Everyone finally pulls together in the second set and Nobara is the one that raises everyone's spirits and they attack and play brilliantly getting the most famous and best player of the other team onto the field.

OF course Shouji comes and beats them for the first few balls but then Nobara and everyone else picks up their game impressing the other team even though they lose. Shouji challenges Nobara to come up to the top and fight against them in the finals.

On the other hand, the boys' team wins three games in the tournament and moves up.

I really don't think I enjoyed the manga much at first, but now it's sooo good! I'm glad I decided to give it another chance (after deciding to swear off sports mangas [EX: Prince of Tennis, Girl Got Game])

I like the story in Crimson Hero and the characters are getting more depth in every volume. But I just don't understand the girls' hair... I'm annoyed by weird things.

It feels like Crimson Hero has finally found its groove. Sure, there's still a lot of crying, but what am I to know? Maybe athletes are all just big criers.
